"Do you consider that your likelihood of turning into a pro musician is like one in a million? You have to 'get lucky', 'be in the right place at the right time', or 'know somebody critical in the music industry', right?

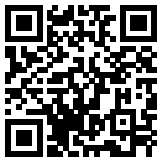

You probably think that other musicians in the business are your competitors and that for you to experience success in the music business, you need to 'pulverize the opposition'. In reality, you don't have any true opposition. Most artists don't even have a slight chance of getting anywhere in music because they don't know how to do (or 'choose' not to do) the specific things I'm about to tell you. When you learn how to add value with minimum risk to the music companies you work with, the music business WILL flock to you, demonstrating minimal interest in other competent people who are attempting to achieve the same things you are.

Give me a couple of minutes and I'll share with you exactly what the music industry looks for in you -- it's mind blowing. Click now: <http://tomhess.net/MusicCareer.aspx>
