QR Code Link to This Post We are an education technology start-up and we are looking for a few students (you can be a part-time student, student at a community college or vocational school) who would like to participate in video chats over webinar technology discussing different careers.

The student would be the interviewer, we find the people to interview and set the questions.
The student needs a computer and good internet connection.

It pays $12 per interview and the interviews are between 8-10 minutes.
The purpose of the interviews is career exploration - - to give students access to more information about careers.
We would like students passionate about career exploration.

If interested respond to this post with your name, age and where you are attending school and we will reach out to send up a virtual interview.

This truly is a gig(or min-remote internship) - -right now because we want diversity from across the country most of our students only do 3 interviews a month. So you won't get rich doing this gig - -probably make about $36 a month.
But if you are looking for an internship and a way to find out about careers and networking, then this is a great opportunity for.
