I'm seeking an Automobile Windshield and Door Glass Installer for what is probably a solid days work. I need this installer to come with the knowledge required to remove and replace several windshields, car door glass and rear windows without breaking anything, making a mess or seeking help.

Basically - please don't reply unless you really know glass and have the tools to do the jobs I need without destroying my cars.

First Project - I have 2 (qty) Mercedes Benz E320's. I need the tinted glass in all four doors as well as the rear window removed from the car I'm retiring. I then need all that glass installed into my E320 i'll be using as a daily driver. One full window regulator will need to also be relocated into the drivers side rear door. I want to have the smaller non moving windows relocated as well. (I may or may not need glass re-installed into car I'm retiring)

Second Project - I have 2 (qty) 1973 Opel GT cars. I also have 2 brand new gaskets for the front and rear of my primary Opel. I need the windshield from my parts car put into my "keeper" using the new gasket. I also need the rear window re-installed with the new gasket. I also need the rear windows in my keeper opel very carefully gone over with the gasket kits I have.

I expect that anyone I hire will pay VERY close attention to detail on both cars. I look forward to discussing suggested sealants, things to avoid, tricks for each install and cautious work.

I'm trying to avoid a mess. I need a windshield for the cars, and a window regulator. I don't know what you can do, but we can talk about it. Please have excellent communication skills and the ability to come back a second or third day to do the work correctly rather than rush through a shoddy job. I have a large garage and 2 driveways to work in. There is plenty of parking available. Working here should be pleasant as I will help get what you need, most likely make you a nice lunch and be flexible with your schedule.

I also have a good deal of tools and mechanical knowledge, but no clue as to what to do with installing windshields etc..
