If you're a father that's tired, overworked, feeling close to burnout and wants to work more intelligently...

It's a new month and still somewhat of a new year...our second publication which is close to final release by a project engineer who took some time away from corporate america is helping to transition those who are burned out or done with stressful work environments and associates.

To demonstrate the latest book's power, concepts, principles and practices, an exclusive webinar will be hosted to a select group of professionals who provide services to the affluent who wish to literally design a new lifestyle OR have resolutions consisting of inspiring life-changing goals for 2015.

If you're a dad that fits this profile and feels this year should be EPIC for you, or would love a boost, push, or guide to support your efforts...Being a part of this research effort could benefit you.

Reply to be considered. Space will be limited on a first come first serve basis for this round of research.

Participants can qualify to be compensated for their participation according to the program guidelines.

Ideal participants are those who currently use an analog (Franklin Covey, At-Glance etc.) or digital scheduling system such as Microsoft Outlook, Google calendar etc. Or both.

This is an exciting time as we grow our brand in the world. Thank
