Please read My ad before responding. I am a musician looking to find someone to collaborate with. Looking to find some to write with. I paly Guitar and Bass but I am willing to sideliner those to produce and write. I have complete studio setup, and can build drum tracks. I would like to find a creative individual that has musical singer/song writer ability, definitely has guitar or keyboard ability would be a great plus (I play guitar yes but I know my ability) . Genre wise I would I kind of of an 80's hard rock guy, but would find a project in the indie rock / pop rock /Country type thing every interesting. Anything that makes you hum a melody or a guitar part in your head type thing. U am a male in mid 40's with tons of stage and gigging experience and am just looking for a recording / writing type of partner, and who knows past that (I am not against playing things out) I am open to male or female and age isn't really that important. Just someone that actually wants to write and not just tell people that they write and never do. If this sounds interesting drop me a email tell me a little about yourself. I am in the east mesa area so probably would be best to be in that end of town for convenience. I look forward to hearing form you.

PS I am really looking for someone that has musical instrument ability... Don't have to be a guitar god. Also I am not really looking to play or write parts for your songs that have been lying around for years and years. I am looking to really do a collaboration. That being said, I am willing to collaborate or write on older Ideas and the like but not on your already completed songs that you "Locked In" to a structure or whatnot... Also if you respond to the ad, at least be willing to respond back from my reply.
