Timeshare companies are legally forbidden from using strong-arm tactics to sell a timeshare to you. Many timeshare companies use lies and intimidation to defraud you, which is illegal. Did your timeshare salesman:

Pitch you for more than 90 minutes?

Invite you to a free dinner or event, which turned into a sales pitch?

Promise you that your timeshare would increase in value over time?

Promise you that you would be able to sell your timeshare whenever you want?

Promise that they would buy it back from you when you desired, no questions asked?

These tactics are legally considered COERCION and FRAUD, which are illegal. If your timeshare company did not follow through with their promises, then they can be held legally accountable.

Did you purchase your timeshare in the last ten years? If so, we can help.

Our law firms professional services are backed by our 100% money back guarantee, and in some cases, we can even successfully get partial or full refunds for you. So even if you're unsure whether you were a victim of fraud or misrepresentation, give us a.
