Have you been putting off the call for service because you don't want a big bill?
 Are you looking at the endless list of people to perform the service on Craigslist?
 Most of these people are honest and want to do a good job at a fair price.
 So no matter who you pick, you will more than likely get good work at a fair price
 I have 20 years of experience

I was a machinist mate in the Navy, where I learned all about A/C pumps valves and motors.
 I served our country in the Navy and our country rewarded me with the GI Bill.
 I earned a degree in Electronic Engineering Technology from ASU courtesy of Uncle Sam.
 What that really means is that I understand thermal dynamics and control systems.
 Air Conditioning is all about electronic control systems and thermal dynamics.

It's always important to get a 2nd opinion, especially if it involves replacing a compressor
 The majority of A/C problems aren't related to the Compressor or Freon
 Most problems are caused by motors, capacitors, transformers, relays, fuses, or the thermostat.
 This means that you shouldn't have to worry about a huge bill most of the time.

I won't charge you a dime if I can't fix the problem.
