This is Nemo (1 month), Bell (7 months), and Cajun (7 months). They are Pyreneese X Sharplinicis. The mom is the Pyreneese and the dad is the Shar. Shar's are a more predator aggressive breed. The people I got him from in Canada uses their dogs to keep coyotes, wolves, mountain lion and bears out of their sheep. Two of my Shar's littermates have killed a coyote already. The mom is already making tours thru the sheep again, even though her puppy is only a month old. These dogs are socialized but have always been in the sheep. I am comfortable placing Bell in a big back yard with children and chickens to guard type home or guarding sheep out in the pasture. She is very versatile for both. I was thinking if someone's home was located in bear or mountain lion country and wanted some protection for their children. I love these dogs for my children, they are smart enough to know the difference between a threat and an non threat. Cajun would be best guarding sheep out in the pasture, she is more aloof by nature. Both dogs are guarding bum lambs and calves right now, while there are no predators at the house, they don't let 4H pigs in with the lambs. The first pics are Nemo, the next ones are Bell, the blurry one is Bell licking a calf. Laying outside the barn is Cajun. I put in a picture of the dad and the mom at the end. Nemo is $750, Cajun is $1250 and Bell is $2500 (the kids picked her to keep, so I will only sell for more.)
