I picked up a piece of boating gear that was adrift near the mouth of the Warren River Saturday morning (June 13). There is no identification on it, but from its appearance it could not have been afloat for more than a couple of days. If it belongs to you and you can identify it by description I would be happy to return it to you. If you lost something nearby, email me a description of the item, size, color, identifying characteristics, and if it is what I found we will arrange to return it to you. It is valuable enough that if I lost it, I would want it.
