I adopted Pepper and Sanchez when they were kittens, and have had them ever since. They are about five years old, and as loving as can be. Bombay cats are a special breed, they are very intelligent, vocal, loyal and affectionate. With a new baby and other pets, our home is overcrowded, so I'm hoping to find the perfect individual to adopt these special cats. They are fixed, not declawed (new owner cannot declaw), and not utd on shots. They are fully litterbox trained, and do not go outside. We have a dog who the cats are afraid of, but they are great with kids. They would do best in a home where they receive lots of attention and have lots of space to play.

If I cannot find the right individual to adopt the cats I will continue to care for them as I have been, but hopefully someone is out there who can give them the loving home they deserve. :) Please text or email if you are that person, and we can go from there. I am not asking for any rehoming.
