Hi, I have two cats that I am trying to give to a good home, because my daughter recently developed an allergic reaction to cats.

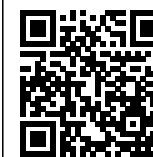

One is a white and grey cat that is half siamese and about 3 years old.

The other is an orange and white striped cat who is about 1 year old.

They are both fully indoor female cats that we have had since 6 weeks old, litter trained, excellent mousers, and we have never had a problem with them clawing furniture or walls, because we trained them not to do so as kittens.

They do not have to go together take one or both.

Sadly neither have been spayed or declawed so we are having a hard time rehoming them. They are good with kids, other cats, and.
