QR Code Link to This Post My Siberian husky is purebred but has no papers. I got her when she was 10 weeks old, and now she is 10 months old. She is potty trained and can roam the house without soiling the furniture and will go to her room to soil on her potty pad. I also take her out to use the bathroom on a schedule so if you constantly take her out she won't have to "go" in your home. She knows the commands "sit" "stand" "stay/ wait".

She is very friendly, like all Siberian huskys are. In fact she is a little too friendly and she will not be a guard dog of course, but she loves all strangers and treats strangers as if they are her owners. Never let a Siberian husky off their leash outside. Had a few times she got out and she will just sprint away. If you call her name she'll look at you and continue running away. I caught her by following her to a house she went off to and was only able to grab her because the strangers at those houses came towards her and she went on her back to get rubbed on her belly. She is a sweet and friendly girl and is good with kids. However she has a lot of power and she doesn't realize that when she jumps on people to hug and lick them that she can freak them out. She is always hungry. I feed her the Costco brand of dry food but she is still always hungry and would rather eat other things. She has gone through the trash (including the bathroom) and eaten whatever she wants! She can be kind of "naughty" and she loves to chew on things. She'll even go in our kitchen and grab a Vienna sausage can (unopened) and chew her way through it! So you have to keep your house nice and tidy. I'm rejoining her because she does shed a lot! So much fur everywhere! Also, I'm a little too busy for a dog right now. Rehoming fee is $1750 since she is purebred and she is not spayed.

No compromise on rehome!!!!
