QR Code Link to This Post A small, creative, remote company is looking for a skilled back-end developer.

The skill-set for the projects we have right now include Python, Flask, and Docker. Nice-to-haves would be AWS, Postgres (or another SQL, really), and Nginx

We:
A remote consultancy that builds the internet things that people need built. Also, in need of an experienced backend dev.

You:
A skilled developer who's willing to learn new things if needed, deliver clean code, and work within reasonable constraints. Bonus if you're actually a cool person that's fun to work with.

Important Notes:

Respond to this ad with some attempt to pass the Turing Test (or at least a funny reply) to receive a link to our short questionnaire. Yes, there really will be a questionnaire. Yes, I know it sucks but we're actually pretty cool to work with.

This position is 100% remote. We like the freedom of remote work and we like working with people who are good at what they do no matter their location.

Extra credit points and a thumbs up for non-bot replies; just a thumbs-up if your bot at least doesn't have spelling.
